René Gabriel, WeinWisser: Mittleres Rubin-Granat. Delikates, fast mild wirkendes Bouquet, Brombeerblüten, feines Cassis, diskreter Ansatz. Leichter, sehr eleganter Gaumen, seidige Tannine, gut stützendes Holz mit Kokoszitaten, verlangende Adstringenz, mehlig Konturen, mittleres Finale. Finessenreicher Wein, den man nicht unterschätzen sollte. 18/20 Punkte - Trinken: 2016-2030"

Robert Parker: „The 2008 exhibits superb minerality as well as the delicacy of a great culinary preparation, packed and stacked with flavor, yet light on its feet. The 2008 will compete, perhaps eclipse the sensational 2005 and 2006. A dense ruby/purple color is followed by notes of charcoal, graphite, black currants, sweet cherries, spice box, and subtle earth. The wine possesses super purity, a medium to full-bodied, gorgeous texture, ripe, sweet tannins, and a layered mouthfeel. The acidity provides freshness, vibrancy, and delineation to all the component parts of this very concentrated yet quintessentially elegant wine. It is a sensational effort that should begin showing secondary nuances of complexity in 8-10 years, and evolve for three decades or more.

In a few short years, new proprietor Robert Wilmers and his winemaker, Veronique Sanders, have raised Haut-Bailly's quality to the level of Pape-Clement, La Mission-Haut-Brion, and Haut-Brion." 95-97/100 Punkte - Trinkreife: 2018-2048"
