René Gabriel, WeinWisser: „Sattes, dunkles Violett-Purpur, satt in der Mitte. Dichtes, feines Bouquet, frisches, parfümiertes Cabernet-Parfüm, Veilchen, Heidelbeeren, viel Cassis, völlig klar ausgerichtet. Im Gaumen von einer seltenen Feinheit, reife blaue und schwarze Beeren, stützende dichte Tannine, ausgeglichene Adstringenz, gebündeltes Finale, sehr lang, durch und durch nobel, von Beginn bis zum Schluß. 18/20 Punkten.“

Parker: „This may turn out to be the finest Lynch Bages made since the 2000. The vintages between 2000 and 2006 are certainly very good, but seemingly lighter-styled in addition to being more forward and soft. The seriously-endowed, dense ruby/purple-tinged 2006 reveals a classic nose of creme de cassis, roasted meats as well as herbs, licorice, and toasty oak. Fleshy, full-bodied, opulent, and well-endowed, it will be at its peak in 5-6 years, and should keep for 20 or more. 91-93 Punkte.“

Tanzer: „(13.1% alcohol with a pH of 3.72) Bright ruby. Pure, rather cool aromas of cassis, blackberry, minerals, licorice and mint. Juicy, intense and penetrating, with impressive definition to the primary black fruit and shoe polish flavors. Serious, even a bit inky, but not hard. Less exuberant at this early stage than the 2005 was a year ago, but this boasts rather broad shoulders and lovely depth of flavor. Jean-Charles Cazes says the combination of focus and big but ripe tannins reminds him of the '96. 89-92 points.“

Wine Spectator: „Shows very good concentration of currant and berry fruit. Full-bodied, with silky tannins and a long, fruity finish. Solid core of everything. 92-94 Punkte.“

Jancis Robinson: „Blackish crimson with a purple rim. Superripe black fruit and warm mocha aromas though not especially intense and overall a bit inky. Dense yet fresh and aromatic on the mid palate and a long dry finish. 17/20 Punkten.“
